Electric 'Walks' This National Walking Month

We all know about the health and wellbeing benefits of fresh air and exercise. Not surprising then that walking groups and walking events are growing in popularity. GPs are using walking for social prescribing, digital influencers tell us it's how to get beach-ready this year, and terms like 'twalking' and 'netwalking' have seeped into our workspace vocabularies. Handily, May is National Walking Month, so what better time than to consider whether you're making the most of the amazing walks accessible from Electric Works. In this edition of the EW newsletter, we feature two such walks both under an hour 'there and back' and easily achievable on your lunchbreak or better still, for that stuffy meeting you need to revitalise. Map and details over the page.

On your Doorstep

The World Snooker Championships, Sheffield's biggest sporting event, returned to the city centre last month. The prestigious tournament, which runs until 5 May, is being broadcast to over 500 million people around the globe as 32 of snooker's best players compete.

As well as attracting international visitors to the city, the Snooker-themed transformation of Tudor Square presents a new lunchtime destination to entice Electric Works occupiers.

Sheffield has hosted the World Snooker Championships at the Crucible Theatre since 1977. As the tournament has grown in popularity and significance, so has the annual debate played out in the media about whether the venue and the city remains a suitable home for players and fans. And whilst ever the city retains this great accolade, we all hope to celebrate and enjoy it!

We recommend taking a walk out to Tudor Square this week over lunch or after work to get the full 'Sheffield - Home of Snooker' experience.

Sheffield's young entrepreneurs celebrated

The BiG Challenge, now in its 18th year, celebrates the entrepreneurial achievements of young people in Sheffield. This city-wide competition invites students from local secondary schools to design and develop their own businesses, fostering creativity and entrepreneurial skills.

Facilitated by Sheffield Chamber of Commerce's See It Be It team, the initiative connects students with employers and encourages innovative thinking. Launched every September for Year 7, 8, and 9 students, this year's competition saw over 600 participants across 17 schools.

Councillor Martin Smith, Chair of the Economic Development and Skills Committee, SCC, emphasized the importance of fostering entrepreneurial skills from an early age, stating that "the BiG Challenge equips young people with valuable business and creative skills for future employment or entrepreneurship, contributing to Sheffield's growing economy."
